

Alex Flavell holds a Master's degree in African Politics from the Centre for Sub-Saharan Africa Studies at the University of Bordeaux, a Bachelor's degree in Politics from the Bordeaux Institute of Political Science and a Bachelor's degree in French Studies from the University of Birmingham (UK). His research in Bordeaux focused on ethnicity and democracy in Africa.

Alex joined the International Organization for Migration's EU liaison office in Brussels in 2006, where he has worked for the past five years as policy and project coordinator. He is IOM's focal point in Brussels for climate change-induced migration and represents IOM in the ACCES initiative launched in 2009 (Africa, Climate Change, Environment and Security), in which he coordinates the working group on migration. He recently developed IOM's policy paper on climate change-induced migration in response to the European Commission consultation on this topic.
