

Tamer Afifi holds a PhD Degree in Economics (International Trade) from the University of Erlangen-Nürnberg, Germany, a Master of Arts Degree in Economics of Development from the Institute of Social Studies (ISS), The Hague, The Netherlands, and a Bachelor of Science Degree in Economics from the Faculty of Economics and Political Science, Cairo University, Egypt. Tamer has worked for five years as a Lecturer of Economics at the Faculty of Commerce, Sohag University, Egypt, before being promoted to Assistant Professor. He has mainly lectured Microeconomics, Macroeconomics, International Trade and Econometrics.

During his work at Sohag University, he has also supervised undergraduate and graduate students and organized and coordinated international university exchange programmes. Prior to his work at UNU-EHS, Tamer joined the Bonn International Graduate School (BIGS-DR) of the Center for Development Research (ZEF), University of Bonn, Germany, where his main area of research was International Trade.

Tamer is currently Associate Academic Officer in the Environmental Migration, Social Vulnerability and Adaptation (EMSVA) section of UNU-EHS. He mainly works in the area of Environmental Change and Forced Migration. His work focuses inter alia on economic aspects and modeling techniques in association with environmental migration. Regionally, Tamer's work mainly focuses on North Africa and the Middle East (MENA), Sub-Saharan Africa and Latin America, and he has conducted field research in the three regions. In addition to lecturing in the UNU-EHS PhD Block courses, Tamer participates in developing UNU-EHS research projects and organizing conferences and workshops of the Institute.